CHALLENGE # 1 [GOALS/PLANS]

My main goal in my website is to provide personal information. I chose to make personal website so that I can showcase my hidden skills and one of the benefits of having this website is that my artistic output can be displayed in one location. My own website will develop into a hub for all the projects that I will do in the next months or years I can use this website in different projects that I will do such as writing poetry, displaying images, telling stories, writing lessons on coding, computing, etc. are all options. These days, a lot of people use social networking sites or personal webpages as blogs to preserve information about themselves. They let you truly showcase your personality and stand out from the competition.

Personal Website Plan

1. Comprehend why you want to create your own website.
   I want to create my Portfolio website because i can show my skills in web development, photo layout, and WordPress website. Anything can be displayed using descriptions, images, and videos. My abilities can be displayed in stunning detail wherever I want in this website.

2. Decide who your is audience.
   My target audience is equally as important as understanding why I'm creating a personal website in the first place.

3. Decide the layout of the personal website you want to build.
   To develop a static graphic representation of my website is my pictures and background images I want to lay out my website with different styles, colors and animation.

4. Make sure you're mobile-friendly.
   Because mobile traffic is increasing, the best websites should be pixel-perfect on all screens. Furthermore, since Google introduced mobile-first indexing, websites have been ranked predominantly in accordance with their mobile versions on search results pages.
